I have the honour to inform Subscribers to The Chemist and Druggist that my connection with that journal as Editor, which has extended over 30 years, ceases with this issue. In retiring from the work which has occupied the greater part of my life, I desire to thank the Proprietors of this paper for their generous confidence, my Colleagues for invaluable aid, and Supporters of the C. & D. throughout the world for their friendly appreciation of very imperfect, but certainly sincere efforts to be of use to the Trade.

The Thornberry A. C. Wootton Exeter. June 29. 1899.

From The Chemist and Druggist, July 1st, 1899.—

Yesterday, Mr. Wootton, whose letter to our readers appears on the opposite page, retired from the Editorship of The Chemist and Druggist, in accordance with his decision expressed over two years ago.

He leaves with the regret and esteem of the Proprietors of this journal, and, we believe, of all his associates at 42 Cannon Street.

THE PROPRIETORS.
